Programming of light-driven chemical reactions by proton-coupled electron transfer. Light-driven proton-coupled electron transfer (PCET) is a powerful strategy for the solar-energy-conversion of waste heat. Herein, we report the development of a light-driven chemical-reaction system, which involves an S(N)Ar reaction induced by transient photoexcitation of a PhEt(+) PhEt(-) → PhEt(-)PhEt(+) intersystem crossing process. The reaction is classified as a PCET process, which is driven by protonation of PhEt(+), followed by electron transfer from PhEt(-) to the PhEt(-)PhEt(+) radical pair. 3da54e8ca3
